Claudia Balsters Hannah Goldstein Dear Käthe

„Dear Hannah (Höch) I“, 2019

Artists Claudia Balsters and Hannah Goldstein are proud to present photographs from their series “Dear Käthe” at the Galerie im Tempelhof Museum. These images find the duo interacting with the life and work of various female artists from whom they have taken inspiration: from Käthe Kollwitz and Hannah Höch to Louise Bourgeois and Ana Mendieta.

The photographs come at the end of an extensive creative process. Following a phase of intense research on the lives of their chosen artists, the two immerse themselves in considerations and plans for the photographs themselves. In so doing, Balsters and Goldstein translate their associative pictorial concepts into elaborately designed stagings, small-scale backdrops in which every element has been carefully thought out: the place where the shot is taken, the objects and people to be seen, and their gestures.

The productions are by no means re-enactments of works by the respective artists, but rather, building upon loose trains of thought and reflection, transpose the others’ ideas into the present.

The resulting photographs form the point of departure for a conversation, as the epistolary form of address of the pieces’ titles already suggests. A dialogue between artists over time, a dialogue between the artist duo and the viewers. A conversation about what art and the lives of artists mean to us, about how they can inspire us, but also about women in art in general.

Claudia Balsters (*1978 in Wilhelmshaven) studied photography with Tina Bara at the Academy of Fine Arts Leipzig. Hannah Goldstein (*1981 in Stockholm) studied photography at the Ostkreuzschule für Fotografie with Arno Fischer and Werner Mahler.

The two artists have been working together for years and their collaborations have been featured in numerous exhibitions.
