TIME LOOPS

Under the wide-ranging and suggestive title TIME LOOPS Anett Stuth presents photographic works which reflect on nature's sublimity and simultaneous destruction. The current exhibition features photographic collages and decollages of pieces of nature, plant and animal objects, and remains from the recent and prehistoric past as well.

In her photographic collages, Stuth assembles historical and contemporary pictorial materials or set pieces of nature and relates them to contemporary civilisation. In her large-format photographs of animal and plant objects, however, all superfluous information has been removed. Detached from origin and time, the objects seem like mute, frozen witnesses of transient diversity. Stuth's impressive works oscillate along a spectrum of exoticism, fascination, and anxiety.

These pieces' creative interplay opens up new perspectives in which our regular understanding of the succession and causality of events is suspended and a recursive concatenation in the form of time loops becomes visible instead. As a result, the artist transcends the conventional dimensions of the photographic spectrum and redefines them.

Anett Stuth (born 1965 in Leipzig) studied photography at the Leipzig Academy of Visual Arts, first with Arno Fischer and then as a master student with Timm Rautert. In her work, the artist creates imaginary spaces by interweaving different levels, bringing together different epochs as well as cultural spheres. Stuth exhibits internationally. She lives and works in Berlin.
